

RAPID WORK DONE ON TARIFF BILL

MEASURE IS BEING FRAMED VERY FAST.

Begin Work Early and Promise to Make a Still Better Record—Mr. Calhoun Going to Washington to See the President—Supposedly on Business Concerning His Cuban Trip

Washington, June 17.—For the fourth time in history a treaty for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States has been signed by the representatives of the two governments. The one sealed Wednesday morning reached the senate at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and after a short executive session was referred to the committee on foreign relations, where it may remain until the tariff bill is disposed of. The message of President McKinley accompanying the treaty, and the treaty itself, were read to the senate. As soon as the reading of the document was completed Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, moved that the message and the treaty be made public. Senator Gray objected to a vote on the motion, and under the rules a single objection carried the motion over. Senator Davis gave notice that at the next executive session he would press the motion for publication, as all the essential features and almost verbatim copy of the treaty had been published in the press of the country.

The message of the president was not a very long document. It dealt with historical facts concerning the island, and showed that the United States and Hawaii yearly grow more closely bound to each other. This was not really annexation, he said, but a continuation of existing relations with closer bonds between people closely related by blood and kindred. The annexation of the islands, said the president, and making them a part of the United States was in accordance with the established policy of this country.

The president called attention to the fact that a legitimate and existing government of Hawaii offered to annex the islands to the United States in 1851, but on account of what was deemed best policy the annexation was not accepted by this country. He stated that the United States virtually exercised a protectorate over the islands since the first American mission. The islands had been largely settled by our own people, and our people were now interested in them. American interests predominated and we had grown to consider them under our own protection. The present treaty was in the light of a consummation of what had practically been in existence for years. The treaty proved to be a simple document of six articles based in its essential details upon the treaty negotiated by John W. Foster during the administration of President Harrison. The islands are ceded practically without conditions, leaving the United States to pursue its own course with reference to their management.

The islands are for the present to constitute a territory of the United States, their local laws remaining in force until new ones are enacted. A commission of five persons, consisting of three Americans and two Hawaiians, to be nominated by the president and confirmed by the senate is provided for the purpose of formulating the mode of government for the islands.

LONDON PAPERS COMMENT.

Intimations That the Monroe Doctrine Interferes with Annexation.

London, June 17.—Most of the morning papers contain editorials on the proposed annexation of Hawaii. The Times says: "The United States government has made a new departure from its historical policy. Such an acquisition of foreign dependencies will bring of necessity a new and serious foreign policy, which cannot in all cases be determined by an unlimited application of Monroeism."

The Standard says: "The natives will be better off under the American government than before. Without doubt, the Americans will soon build a fleet to protect their colony."

The Daily Telegraph says: "No political complications are likely to ensue, but it is for the Americans to square annexation with the Monroe doctrine. Great Britain's interest in the event is only sentimental."

The Morning Post, on the contrary, says: "President McKinley should be satisfied to shelve the matter, now he has brought it before the public. Japan is not likely to consent without a struggle. Great Britain will require a quid pro quo, and their affair will scarcely escape the notice of the Australasians."

The Daily News admits that the United States has a superior claim, and expects that the Japanese protest will be merely diplomatic.

Opposition to the Treaty.

Washington, June 17.—The Japanese minister has entered a formal protest against the Hawaiian treaty. The protest has been expected and will not interfere with the president's policy for prompt annexation. Unexpected opposition, however, has developed in the senate. A few republican senators, notably Wellington of Maryland, have come out publicly against the treaty, following ex-President Cleveland's policy against territorial acquisition.

Chicago came within a dozen runs of checking Boston's victorious career yesterday. The beaneaters had an easy time, winning by a score of 14 to 3 and making it fourteen straight victories. Brooklyn continued to decline yesterday, and allowed Cleveland and Philadelphia, by victories over New York and St. Louis, to crowd it back into the second division. Scores:

Motive for Hedley's Crime.

Carlinville, Ill., June 17.—Wednesday in the county court the last will and testament of John R. Richards, the late mayor of Bunker Hill, who was shot and killed by Capt. F. Y. Hedley, was presented and admitted to probate. The estate is estimated to be worth from $50,000 to $100,000. Harry R. Budd, Richards' attorney, stated in a recent interview that Mr. Richards had made an appointment with him to change the will Saturday afternoon, by which the Brown legacies were to be cut off. Richards was killed at noon, and the will as originally drawn up stands. It is said the prosecution will claim that Hedley knew of Richards' intention to change his will, and acted accordingly.

For a Monument at Wounded Knee.

Rapid City, N. D., June 17.—The remaining braves of the Sioux tribes have petitioned the government for permission to erect a monument over the graves of the dead warriors slain at the battle of Wounded Knee seven years ago. As an evidence of good faith to the government, it is desired to imprint thereon words that shall proclaim Wounded Knee to be the last battlefield on which the Indian shall show hostility to his white brother.

Think Spain Will Comply.

Washington, June 17.—Little doubt is expressed here that the president's demand on Spain for indemnity for the murder of Dr. Ruiz will meet with prompt compliance. It is Spain's game to keep on the most excellent terms with this government. Her sole purpose, of course, is the hope of demonstrating so clearly that she wishes to do the proper thing, as to soften the charges of extreme cruelty on the part of Weyler made on the other side.

VILLAGES LAID LOW BY AN EARTHQUAKE

HAVOC WROUGHT BY UPEHEAV-AL IN INDIA.

Many Towns Levelled to the Earth and Lives Lost in the Recent Seismic Disturbances—Severe Shock Reported from Mexico—Lasted for Thirty-Five Seconds.

Calcutta, June 17.—Further reports of the destruction caused by the earthquake of last Saturday show that great damage was done at Dacca, Jamalpur and Murshidabad. At the latter place the nawab had a miraculous escape.

Great injury has been done to the plantations of Assam, Vachar and Duaro. A number of factories and machine houses have been wrecked at the three places named. At Krischnagar, Mymensingh and Silkot all the courts and treasuries have been demolished. It is expected that the jubilee illuminations will be abandoned and that the money which it was proposed to expend upon them will be devoted to relieving the distress of the earthquake sufferers.

The official records have been buried at Gauhati, where the roads are now crossed by wide chasms. The railroad has vanished in this vicinity, and at Coalpara a tidal wave has destroyed the bazaar and all the other buildings, and the neighboring country is covered with fissures, which are spouting mud and sand. There has been heavy loss of life at Coalpara and Dhubri.

Several of the shaken districts have been heard from, but isolated roads have been broken up by fissures, bridges have been destroyed and the telegraph lines have been broken down almost throughout Assam.

Simla, June 17.—The reports that all of the buildings at Shillong had been destroyed are confirmed. Mr. McCabe, the British resident deputy commissioner, was killed by a falling house, and the English ladies and children are suffering intensely from exposure. The towns of Sylhet and Cherrapunji were levelled to the ground.

Earthquake Shock in Mexico.

City of Mexico, June 17.—Between 10 and 11 o'clock Tuesday night earthquake shocks were felt in this city and in all southern Mexico from Acapulco to Vera Cruz. The movement was thirty-five seconds, followed later by another shock lasting ten seconds. Telegrams from Tehuantepec indicate a continuation of the shocks, and the inhabitants who have not fled are living in tents in the open air.

HE MURDERED HIS FRIEND.

Martin Ensley, of a Noted Southern Family, Robs C. D. Collins of Memphis.

St. Louis, June 17.—C. D. Collins, a wealthy Tennesseean, was lured to his probable death Tuesday night by a man he had known since boyhood and with whom he has been on terms of intimate friendship for six years.

His assailant is Martin Ensley of Memphis, whose father, Col. Enoch Ensley, was one of the most prominent mine owners and planters of the south.

Ensley induced his companion to visit Meramec Highlands, a summer resort 15 miles from here. On the plea of illness he led him to a clump of bushes about 75 yards from the hotel. Here he struck him with a hammer and left him for dead, but Collins recovered sufficiently to give the name of his assailant.

It was his practice to advertise for a prospective partner, and having found one with means, to murder him while in the bush.

The Representatives of the Island and of the United States Agree Upon Terms and President McKinley Asks the Approval of the Senate in the Matter.

Washington, June 17.—The senate made rapid work on the tariff bill on Wednesday. There were no long speeches and the debate was of a snappy character, which at time enlivened, but did not delay the serious work on the bill. Thirteen pages were disposed of, carrying the senate through the agricultural schedule and up to schedule H, relating to spirits, wines, etc. During the day the paragraphs on dairy products, farm products, fish, fruit and nuts, meat products and miscellaneous agricultural products were acted on. The finance committee proposed many changes, in the main advancing rates somewhat over those heretofore reported. The committee was sustained on every vote, although a contest was made on almost every paragraph. Mr. Vest's motion to restore salt to the free list was rejected—yeas, 24; nays, 31.

The important paragraph, proposing a tax on tea, went over at the suggestion of Mr. Allison, who expressed hope that this duty on tea might be dispensed with. The senate met at 11 a. m., and will continue to meet at that hour until the bill is disposed of.

By this marriage Porter loses another of its fairest daughters, a young lady who by her mild appearance and loving disposition has won many friends. The groom is an upright and prosperous young farmer, well worthy of the lady of his choice. A reception was tendered them at the home of the bride's parents, to which about one hundred guests were invited, and all did ample justice to the good things with which the tables were groaning. After tripping the light fantastic toe until the "wee sma' hours," the guests departed, leaving some beautiful tokens of remembrance, and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Condon a pleasant journey through life. Mrs. Maggie Mooney closed her spring term of school in the Eagle district with an entertainment on last Friday evening, which was a credit to both teacher and pupils. Mrs. Harry Boothroyd has been entertaining her sister from Michigan. A large amount of tobacco is being set, but owing to the extreme heat, a good share will have to be re-set. The first of the week we were treated to some summer weather, which was summer weather with a vengeance, the thermometer ranging between 90 and 100 degrees in the shade.

CIRCUIT COURT IN SESSION.

Green County Justice Mill Started on the June Grand Today

The Green county circuit court convened at the court house yesterday Judge Bennett was present to preside. In the case of Dora J. Attwenger vs. Eli M. Knapp, Cliff Knapp, Jr., and Amelia Knapp, the court ordered that a receiver be appointed. The testimony of Joan Gardner in the divorce case of Dora Daniels vs. J. Daniels, that was on trial at Janesville, was taken. The case of the Simons Hardware Co. vs. E. Hahn, Jr., defendant, and E. Hahn, Sr., and Grace Hahn, garnishee, was then called and presented to the court by B. F. Dunwiddie for the plaintiff and A. N. Randall for the defense. The case is being heard by the court.

A GOOD PAPER CELEBRATES

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin Marks Its Semi-Centennial.

The Semi-Centennial edition of the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, was a credit to the men that made it, and Managing Editor Bleyer and his staff may well feel proud of it. The Wisconsin was established on June 8, 1847—two years after the first issue of the Janesville Gazette came from the press. From the first day of its publication, The Wisconsin has been in the front rank of Badger state journals, and its popularity has been born of its worth. It is always enterprising, always reliable, always clean, and always republican. May it live for countless decades.

Burns and A. E. Shumway are the promoters of this new enterprise which will be conducted similar to the outdoor sales carried on in this city several years ago. Mr. Shumway and Mr. Burns have this week visited Jefferson and Watertown where those weekly sales are now conducted and they see no reason why this plan should not pay in this city.

HAWAII NOW—CUBA NEXT?

The president's determined stand on the Hawaiian question gives weight to the rumor that he will no longer interpose his influence against the passage by the house of the Cuban belligerency resolution which has already passed the senate.

It is said that the president defines his position in regard to the resolution by remarking: "Let the people have their way."

It may be taken for granted that the recent course of Spain in giving renewed approval to the Canovas ministry, and its evident purpose to permit General Weyler to continue his policy of exterminating non-combatants, leaves our government without a hope that real concessions will be offered to Cuba, or the warfare against its people conducted on civilized lines.

The president therefore decides that the time has come for congress as the representative of the people, to use its deliberative judgment in regard to granting belligerent rights to the struggling Cubans.

The principal objection to the annexation of Hawaii, is that we have never done anything of the sort before. A great many successful business enterprises are open to the same objection, but the average business man does not regard the objection as fatal.

That public sentiment in favor of protection is on the increase, even in such states as Georgia, is shown by the speeches and votes of democratic senators on several schedules of the tariff bill.

It seems that the adoption of a protective tariff by Canada was the first step towards the abandonment of free trade by England. Now let the American free trade mourners prepare to shed tears.

It is surprising to note how quiet some of the loudest howlers against large government appropriations can become when an appropriation is made to be expended in their immediate vicinity.

A lot of this Hawaiian trouble would have been unnecessary and the danger of war with Japan would have been avoided entirely had President McKinley been in the White House two years ago.

Some creditors are making money, for themselves, by calamity howling, and as long as they can do that they will keep up the howling, regardless of the injury they may do to others.

Democratic discussion, in and out of the senate, was hardly necessary to convince anybody that the Chicago platform was constructed regardless of principles, and solely to get votes.

No scheme on earth can get money among the people as quickly as improving business, and nothing will improve business as quickly as the new tariff will.

Having failed in their effort to make the sound-money democrats wear sackcloth and ashes the populists are trying to sprinkle dust over the entire country.

It looks though David B. Hill will be cast for a thinking part in the New York campaign, as he is distrusted by both wings of the democratic party.

The latest is that Mr. Bryan has been converted to the "re-incarnation" theory, and believes himself to have the soul of Thomas Jefferson.

Uncle Charles Dana, of the New York Sun, advises Mr. Bryan to drop silver and seek an engagement as an actor at a roof garden.

The trouble with the populists is an old one with political parties—too many men who want to be the whole thing.

Mr. Cleveland's shilly-shallying with the Hawaiian question is responsible for Japan's threatening attitude today.

"Something funny."

"How do you know it's funny?" was the bantering rejoinder.

"Humph! I can tell by looking at it. It's about two men who meet on the street. They stand there and say a lot of things, and at last one of them says: 'Well, the drinks are on me.' And that shows that it's funny."—Washington Star.

When Friendship Ceased.

The two dearest friends were discussing the ball, which one of the dearest friends had attended.

"The papers this morning speak of me as being among the beauties of the ball," said the one who had attended.

"And were you?" asked the other, with interest. "How nice it must have been. Who were the beauties?"

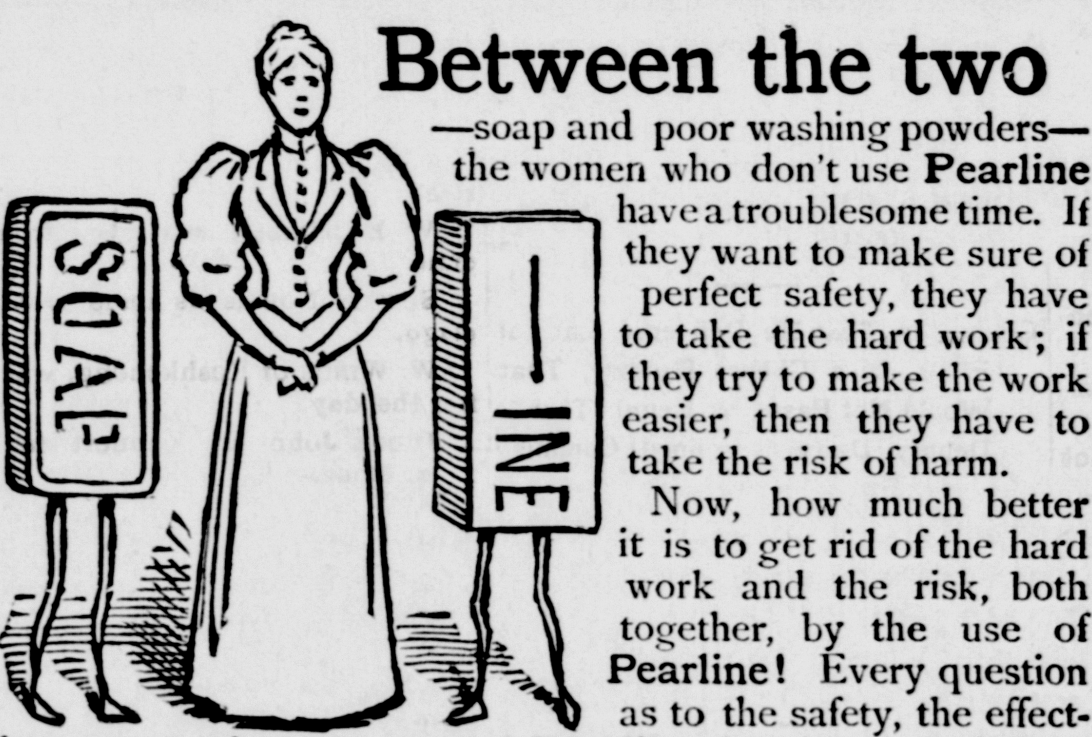

"That was the beginning of their estrangement."—Chicago Post.

A Change.

"Women are the most changeable creatures on earth," remarked the Benedict.

"Yes, I expect so," replied the bachelor. "What's your latest experience?"

"Oh, nothing much," said the Benedict, thoughtfully, "except that before I was married my fiancée used to say her regard for me needed no words. Now it doesn't seem to need anything else."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Between the two

—soap and poor washing powders—the women who don't use Pearline have a troublesome time. If they want to make sure of perfect safety, they have to take the hard work; if they try to make the work easier, then they have to take the risk of harm.

Now, how much better it is to get rid of the hard work and the risk, both together, by the use of Pearline! Every question as to the safety, the effectiveness, or the economy of Pearline has been settled by millions of women.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 512 JAMES PYLE, New York.

HIGH GALE RAGED; MUCH RAIN FELL

DAMAGE IS DONE BY LAST NIGHT'S STORM.

Telephone Wires Are Broken By Falling Trees and Bolts Burn Out the Insulator—Trains Are Delayed By the Washouts—No Serious Loss, However, Was Inflicted.

Lightning, thunder, rain, wind and heat all joined forces and delivered last evening one of the most severe storms that has visited this section of the country in many days, C. O. D.

The rain did much good but the electricity and wind raised havoc that will require time and money to replace.

The storm was at its worst at about 3 o'clock this morning and the frequent flashes of lightning brought terror to the hearts of the timid. Blinding flashes played against the dark gray clouds and the wind blew a gale.

At the local telephone office all was confusion. At times it seemed as though the lightning was devoting all its energy to "calling up" central. Miss Nettie Schottle, the night operator found but little time in which to rest.

Manager Slater and Electrician Bigley were on duty at an early hour this morning and broken wires and burned insulators in all sections of the city received their immediate attention.

Damage Is Extensive.

The damage to the telephone company's property in this section will amount to a goodly sum. Communication over the long distance wires between this city and Madison and between here and Milton Junction was entirely cut off, and in no round about way could Madison be reached. Three miles north of this city the wind blew a large tree down. As fell it broke the wires cutting off all communication between this city and Edgerton. Men were at once put to work repairing the damage.

The heavy downfall of water was a warning to the railroad officials, and all trains entering the city at an early hour this morning ran at slackened speed in fear of entering a washout.

Several washouts of minor proportions have been reported, but no serious damages have resulted from them. On the St. Paul road the Mineral Point passenger train failed to pull into the city on time and all outgoing trains were ordered not to wait for it. A special train of two coaches was pressed into service from this city on the St. Paul road and was ordered to Milton Junction in order that the waiting passengers might make the through train to Milwaukee. This trouble was all caused by a washout on the Mineral Point division.

Hail at Barker's Corners.

At Barker's Corners, four miles from the city, the rain fell in sheets and hailstones came in a steady downfall. Residents said they never saw such a storm before. The ground was white with the hailstones.

The strong wind blew down small trees in many of the outlying sections of the city but the damage was not extensive.

SALE INTEREST IS UNABATED

Mrs. Woodstock's Store a Mecca for Bargain Seekers.

Pretty good proof of the existence of bargain of the popular order, is the crowd which is continually to be found at Mrs. Woodstock's closing out sale. Most every lady likes to save money on articles of dress or for the house, and why shouldn't they? And especially should they be eager to save money on high class articles, such as this stock embodies. While some of the goods are unseasonable, the prices have been marked so low that they will go at once. Mrs. Woodstock's determination to discontinue this branch of her business, makes figures that will tempt everybody.

ARREST A FARMER FOR SELLING MILK

COMPLAINT MADE AGAINST JOHN SCHULTZ.

Charge Is That He Delivered Lactated Fluid, In a Cheese Factory, That Would Not Pass the Legal Test—Deputy Dairy and Food Commissioner Swore Out the Warrant.

John Schultz, a prominent farmer who resides in the town of Lima will be arrested and brought to this city tomorrow to answer to the charge of selling milk that is below the required grade. Assistant Dairy and Food Commissioner W. W. Chadwick of Monroe, walked into the municipal court yesterday and made the complaint on which Schultz will be arrested. The law provides that all milk sold to the public must contain three per cent. of butter fat. It is for selling milk below this grade that Schultz will have to answer. The law provides a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100. The food and dairy commissioners have, during the past few days, been quietly working in this section of the county. During the fore part of the week they have been "sampling" in the vicinity of Milton.

Special attention has been paid to the farmers who have been selling milk to the H. J. Bullock cheese factory, which is now in full operation near Milton.

Sampled the Can.

Among the most prominent milk contributions to this factory was Mr. Schultz. In the early part of the morning he would bring his numerous cans filled to the top with what seemed to the cheese makers to be pure milk. On one of these bright mornings, while Schultz was emptying his cans, one of the dairy and food commissioners was on hand to take a sample of the white fluid. The test that followed plainly showed that it was not up to the standard grade and on tomorrow the prisoner will have a chance to explain matters.

District attorney Jackson will prosecute the case. The arrest of Schultz is the first case where a farmer has been arrested and brought into the local courts in many a day, although a similar case, with a Fairfield farmer as the defendant, was recently aired in the courts in Beloit.

In speaking of the milk law, Commissioner Chadwick said that vigorous steps were now being taken to see that all milk dealers in this section of the state lived up to the rule. It is expected that a series of samples will be taken from local wagons almost any day.

CHICAGO MARKETS BY WIRE

Robert Lindholm's Letter On the Condition of Crops and Trade.

Chicago, June 17.—[Special to Byrd and Law Commission Co.]—Everybody has been saturated with the information that the big men in the trade were getting out of the July wheat and taking September instead and as a natural consequence the small dealers have hastened to do the same thing and it is no wonder that July wheat turned weak, but it strikes me that somebody must have been buying all this July wheat that everybody wanted to sell and a deal in any commodity is only possible when the buildings are concentrated in one or two hands as they appear to be at present. The sharp reaction from 65 to 60 cents was started by some actual demand for cash wheat and then fortified by some demand to cover shorts. Toledo and Minneapolis report a good demand for cash wheat and we do not care to surrender the views that we have expressed heretofore in regard to the wheat situation. There is a long time before new supplies arrive, no matter if Oklahoma, Texas and Tennessee do harvest a few car lots of wheat.

The latest information from Kansas is that a portion of the crop is already ruined and it is highly probable that the rest of it will share the usual fate. Corn is remarkably strong. The heavy rains last night made some speculators think that the crop was secure and they waited in nervous excitement for a chance to sell a lot of it, but somehow there were plenty of people ready to buy it and wanted more.

Provisions are acting awful weak, weak enough to be on the bottom.

THEY SHOT TO KILL IN BELOIT DUEL

EXCITING SCENE IN ROCKFORD POLICE COURT.

Prisoner Huston and Deputy Tully Became Excited Over the Memory of the Deadly Fight in Which They Had Engaged—Say They Would Slay Each Other on Sight.

The trial of the men arrested for participating in the Beloit shooting affray and the Rockton train hold-up, were in the Rockford police court for trial yesterday. Five men were arraigned, who gave their names as William Huston, Chas. Phillips, James Reynolds, James Miller, Ed. J. Lapgood. All entered the plea of not guilty.

The trainmen testified to the facts as already given. Revolvers found in the hog car by the trainmen after the arrest at Rockford were introduced as evidence.

The sensation of the afternoon came when Deputy Tully was put on the stand. After telling of the tramps turning after getting himself and Mr. Bitzer between them and opening fire, he told of his wound, and then pointing to Huston said in a voice hoarse with anger, "and there is the cur who did it. If ever a man was doing so, he was shooting to kill."

Huston leaned forward from his chair, his fierce face reddening with rage, all the passion of the death conflict coming back. "Who wouldn't shoot to kill when he is being chased? Didn't you shoot to kill?"

"You're right I did," answered Tully. "I wish I had killed you; I'd kill you now if I had the chance."

Both men were restrained, but the excitement was intense for a moment.

Arthur G. Stiles was put on the stand, and told of his hold-up. It looks as though a part of the men were slated for a long time in Juliet.

INDICTMENT WAS NOT RIGHT

Therefore Attorney J. W. Bates Was Given His Liberty.

The district attorney asked to have Bates held for the next grand jury, but the judge ordered that he be dismissed. Bates says he will leave for Beloit this evening."

ADDRESSES will be made by Senator Whitehead, Mayor Thoroughgood, Rev. W. H. Wotton, Rev. H. W. Thompson, Dr. James Mills and Alexander Galbraith at the Mayflower park picnic next Tuesday afternoon. All are invited to join in celebrating Queen Victoria's jubilee.

CHAPTER XV.

THE SURRENDER OF THE LETTERS.
If the letters were safe, that was a good deal more than I was. The moment the station master had made his agreed upon announcement he said to the walkers:

"Had any news of Mr. Gordon?"
"No," said Lord Ralles. "And as the lights keep moving in the town they must still be hunting for him."

"I reckon they'll do considerable more hunting before they find him up there," chuckled the man, with a self important manner. "He's hidden away under this platform."

"Not right here?" I heard Madge cry, but I had too much to do to take in what followed. I was lying close to the loose plank, and even before the station master had completed his sentence I was squirming through the crack. As I freed my legs I heard two shots, which I knew was the signal given by the cowboys, followed by a shriek of fright from Madge, for which she was hardly to be blamed. I was on my feet in an instant and ran down the tracks at my best speed. It wasn't with much hope of escape, for once out from under the plank I found, what I had not before realized, that day was dawning, and already outlines at a distance could be seen. However, I was bound to do my best, and I did it.

Before I had run 100 feet I could hear pursuers, and a moment later a revolver cracked, plowing up the dust in front of me. Another bullet followed, and, seeing that affairs were getting desperate, I dodged round the end of some cars, only to plump into the arms of a man running at full speed. The collision was so unexpected, that we both fell, and before I could get on my feet some one plumped down on top of me and I felt something cold on the back of my neck.

"Lie still, yer sneakin coyote of a road agent," said the man, "or I'll blow yer neck into hash."

I preferred to take his advice and lay quiet while the cowboys gathered. From all directions I heard them coming, calling to each other that "the skunk that shot the woman is corralled," and other forms of the same information. In a moment I was jerked to my feet, only to be swept off them with equal celerity and was half carried, half dragged, along the tracks. It wasn't as rough handling as I have taken on the football field, but I didn't enjoy it.

In a space of time that seemed only seconds I was close to a telegraph pole; but, brief as the moment had been, a fellow with a lariat tied round his waist was half way up the post. I knew the mob had been told that I had killed a woman in the hold up, for the cowboy, bad as he is, has his own standards, beyond which he won't go. But I might as well have tried to tell my innocence to the moon as to get them to listen to denials, even if I could have made my voice heard.

The lariat was dropped over the cross-piece, and as a man adjusted the noose a sudden silence fell. I thought it was a little sense of what they were doing, but it was merely due to the command of Baldwin, who, with Camp, stood just outside the mob.

"Let me say a word before you pull," he called, and then to me he said, "Now will you give up the property?"

I was pretty pale and shaky, but I came of a stuffish stock, and I wouldn't have backed down then, it seemed to me, if they had been going to boil me alive. I suppose it sounds foolish, and if I had had plenty of time I think my common sense would have made me crawl. Not having time, I was on the point of saying "No," when the door of 218, which lay about 200 feet away, flew open, and out came Mr. Cullen. Fred, Albert, Lord Ralles and Captain Ackland, all with rifles. Of course it was perfect desperation for the five to tackle the cowboys, but they were game to do it, all the same.

How it would have ended I don't know, but as they sprang off the car platform Miss Cullen came out on it and stood there, one hand holding on to the doorway, as if she needed sup-

"Let me say a word before you pull," port, and the other covering her heart. It was too far for me to see her face, but the whole attitude expressed such suffering that it was terrible to see

What was more, her position put her in range of every shot the cowboys might fire at the five as they charged. If I could have stopped them, I would have done so; but, since that was impossible, I cried:

"Mr. Camp, I'll surrender the letters."

"Hold on, boys," shouted Baldwin. "Wait till we get the property he stole." And, coming through the crowd, he threw the noose off my neck.

"Don't shoot, Mr. Cullen," I yelled, as my friends halted and raised their rifles, and fortunately the cowboys had opened up enough to let them hear me and see that I was free of the rope.

Escorted by Camp, Baldwin and the cowboys, I walked toward them. On the way Baldwin said in a low voice: "Deliver the letters, and we'll tell the boys there has been a mistake. Otherwise—"

When he came up to the five, I called to them that I had agreed to surrender the letters. While I was saying it Miss Cullen joined them, and it was curious to see how respectfully the cowboys took off their hats and fell back. "You are quite right," Mr. Cullen called. "Give them the letters at once."

"Oh, do, Mr. Gordon," said Madge, all white and breathless with emotion.

"The money is nothing. Don't think"—It was all she could say.

I felt pretty small, but with Camp and Baldwin, now re-enforced by Judge Wilson, I went to the station, ordered the agent to open the safe, took out the three letters and handed them to Mr. Camp, realizing how poor Madge must have felt on Hance's trail.

Just as he took them we heard outside the first note of a bugle, and as it sounded "By fours, column left," my heart gave a big jump and the blood came rushing to my face. Camp, Baldwin and Wilson dashed out of the door, and I wasn't two feet behind them. There was a squadron of cavalry swinging a circle round the station, and we had barely reached the platform when the bugle sounded "Halt," quickly followed by "Forward left." As the ranks wheeled and closed up as a solid line about us I could have cheered with delight. There was a moment's dramatic hush, in which we could all hear the breathing of the winded horses, and then came the clatter of sword and spurs as an officer sprang from his saddle.

"I want Richard Gordon," the officer called.

I said, "At your service and badly in need of yours, Captain Singer."

"Hope the delay hasn't spoiled things," said the captain. "We had a cursed fool of a guide, who took the wrong trail and ran us into Limestone canyon, where we had to camp for the night."

I explained the situation as quickly as I could, and the captain's eyes gleamed. "I'd have given a bad quarter to have got here ten minutes sooner and ridden my men over those scoundrels," he muttered. "I saw them scatter as we rode up, and if I'd known what they'd been doing we'd have given them a volley." Then he walked over to Mr. Camp and said, "Give me those letters."

"I hold those letters by virtue of an order"—Camp began.

"Give me those letters," the captain interrupted.

"Do you intend a high handed interference with the civil authorities?" Judge Wilson demanded.

"Come, come," said the captain. "You have taken forcible possession of the United States property. Any talk about civil authorities is rubbish, and you know it."

"I will never"—cried Mr. Camp.

"Corporal Jackson, dismount a guard of six men!" rang the captain's voice, interrupting him.

Evidently something in the voice or order convinced Mr. Camp, for the letters were hastily produced and given to Singer, who at once handed them to me. I turned with them to the Cullens and, laughing, said, "All's well that ends well."

But they didn't seem to care a bit about the recovery of the letters and only wanted to have a handshake all round over my escape. Even Lord Ralles said, "Glad we could be of a little service," and didn't refuse my thanks, though the deuce knows they were badly enough expressed, in my consciousness that I had done an ungentlemanly trick over those trousers of his and that he had been above remembering it when I was in real danger. I'm ashamed enough to confess that when Miss Cullen held out her hand I made believe not to see it. I'm a bad hand at pretending, and I saw Madge color up at my act.

The captain finally called me off to consult about our proceedings. I felt no very strong love for Camp, Baldwin or Wilson, but I didn't see that a military arrest would accomplish anything, and after a little discussion it was decided to let them alone, as we could well afford to do, having won.

This matter decided, I said to the captain: "I'll be obliged if you'll put a guard round my car. And then, if you and your officers will come inside, I have a something in a bottle recommended for removing alkali dust from the tousils."

"Very happy to test your prescription," said Singer genially.

I started to go with him, but I could not resist turning to Mr. Camp and his friends and saying:

"Gentlemen, the G. S. is a big affair, but it isn't quite big enough to fight the U. S."

Good Printing...

Is like good painting—it demands and obtains a second glance. The second glance leads to thought about and knowledge of the thing portrayed, and then on to the artist or advertiser.

The kind of printing as well as the kind of painting that it pays to do and to have done is that which obtains this "second glance." Plenty of the other kind!

We are PRINTERS. Our work obtains glances of admiration, and thus leads on to the end desired. We don't do the "other kind." Put our job room to the test.

DRESSMAKING HINTS.

Making a Bodice—How to Place the Hooks and Eyes.

In making a close fitting bodice, of which the lining and outside are alike in shape, each piece of the lining should be full a little when it is basted to the corresponding piece of the outside before the parts of the bodice are put together. This slight fullness of the lining keeps the outside from wrinkling. Too much must not be allowed, however. A quarter of an inch extra is usually enough.

If on a bodice closing with hooks and eyes the hooks and eyes should be placed alternately on each side, the fastening will be more secure.

Although wedding gowns are preferably of extreme simplicity of style, trimming is not absolutely forbidden. The most elegant costumes for brides are made in the plain princess style, with a long train and without ornamentation, but some very pretty gowns are decorated in various ways. Fine satin or moire is the material generally employed, pure white for blonds, cream white for women of medium depth of coloring and yellowish white for brunettes. Sometimes the princess effect is seen only in the back, the front being more or less draped and adorned to conceal the fastening. The richer the material of the costume the plainer it may be and the greater may be the length of the train. The latter is not lined with stiffening, but has a facing of haircloth of eight or nine inches depth. If an interlining of very thin flannel is placed between the lining and the outside of the train, the folds will be rounder and richer looking. The lining itself must of course be of silk.

The illustration given today shows a very pretty blouse of surah. It is plain and close in the back, having one wide box plait in the middle. The front is tucked lengthwise at the top to form a yoke and is gathered at the waist. It opens at the left side under several rows of narrow plaited ruffles edged with Valenciennes lace. The close sleeves are slightly shirred and have small, draped plaits at the top. There are lace edged plaits at the throat and wrists, and the collar and belt are of striped taffeta. JUDIC CHOLLET.
